

MyZuzah Moments - April 4, 2025

Our global network of partners received a pre-Passover message this week, highlighting our recent news features, exposure at the Jewish Funders Network gathering, and sharing some program ideas for later this spring. In the conversations that followed, our team now has leads on new partnerships in Honduras and Pakistan – two countries where we have yet to place mezuzahs! With a little luck and creativity those will be countries 74 and 75 on our map!

Partner Updates:

Jewish La Paz, in La Paz, Mexico (which is actually in Baja California, but who's counting) has been partnering with us for more than two years, working with the immigrant community from the U.S., Israel, and elsewhere who have chosen to make their home along the Pacific Ocean. They highlighted our joint efforts in an Instagram post last week, along with pictures of the impactful mezuzah activities that they run.

Did you know that a growing Jewish community is thriving in the small town of Todos Santos?

We and @jewishcabo recently launched a monthly class there, and the saying "one mitzvah leads to another" has never been more true! Community members are proudly putting up mezuzahs on their doors (a special thanks to @myzuzahorg). Plus, we've set up a self-service tefillin stand—so whether you're a local or just passing through, you can easily do a mitzvah on the go! Message us to find out more.

Our mezuzot found their way to Kfar Azza in Israel this week, where we provided 18 mezuzot in partnership with Chabad of Westport, CT. Click to watch a message from Rav Shachar Gueta, the Rav of battalion Koach Avshalom that guards the Kibbutzim in the area.

Following the successful distribution of our Solidarity Mezuzahs at JFN, we shipped another 110 to Hillel at Southern Methodist University (yes, there are Jews there!) in Dallas, where they hosted a Unity Dinner between religious groups on campus, headlined by our friend Patricia Heaton, who came to share our joint message of building bridges for our common values. Rabbi Heidi Coretz, SMU Hillel's Executive Director, sent us this message of appreciation:

Thanks so much for the MyZuzahs. We placed them all around the tables for folks to take and explained what they were. There weren't any that were left over. People LOVED them! Really appreciate the support!

One of the event's Instagram posts is to the left, and a picture of the whole event is below. If you zoom in, you can see Patricia speaking from the podium!

Individual Recipient Stories:

*I heard about MyZuzah through a friend with One Table, and it felt almost too good to be true. Mezuzot are expensive, and getting one for free is a big deal! I just moved in with my partner, and am very excited to start this new chapter together. He is not Jewish, but has been very supportive and eager to learn more about Judaism because of me. We will eventually build an interfaith family together. It is of great comfort of me to have a marker of Jewish identity on the door. It helps remind me of the commandment to carry Jewish teachings out into the world and also foster them in my home with my future children. Lindsey Lev, Dallas, TX
